DOES AMERICA WANT SOCIALISM?

Upon the outcome of the present controversy between the utility industry and the federal government, private versus public ownership, rests the future of private enterprise. As David Lawrence recently pointed out, the principle involved is so far-reaching in its implications that the American people may want to decide at the coming congressional elections whether public ownership is to be a national policy, whether coal mines, automobile companies, railroads, department stores, retail shops and what-not shall be owned by the federal octopus and thus inaugurate the beginning of the end of private capitalism (individual opportunity) in the United States.

Don't be fooled! No matter how small a business man you may be, you are directly concerned in this issue. As has been pointed out time and again, no nation can be half socialist and half democratic. If a policy of state socialism (public ownership) is adopted toward one industry, it will in all likelihood spread to all industry, big and little.

A few private electric company executives have undoubtedly been guilty of scattered abuses of public trust—but, and here is the vital point, these abuses can always be corrected by intelligent public regulation, whereas if the industry were owned by the public and operated by public agencies, the private citizen would be utterly helpless in seeking recompense for injury. He would inevitably find himself fighting a hopeless battle against entrenched bureaucracy.

There can be no further buck passing. This is not a battle against "big business," as many politicians would have us believe; it is a battle over a matter of principle in which every American is deeply concerned. It means changing our form of government.

THE FARMER'S FUTURE

What a farmer plants, and how much he reaps, is already being suggested to him by the federal government. The motive, of course, is sound—to assure him a fair return for his time, investment, and effort. But that is just the beginning of a trend which promises more outside supervision.

Congress is considering a bill to regulate wages and hours. It would specifically exempt farmers. But that very exemption is a clear indication of a belief that congress has the power to set the wages the farmer pays his hands and the hours he works them.

Even more significant are the two other developments. First, the national labor relations board has just decided that it has jurisdiction over farm marketing cooperatives. It instructed the North Whittier Heights Citrus association of Puento, Calif., to reinstate with back pay 27 packing house workers who had been dismissed.

Second is the new Wagner bill, now a subject of congressional study. That really gets down to brass tacks. It would force any person who sells goods to the government to agree to let the government supervise his dealings with his employees. Even the farmer who sells vegetables to a federal veterans' hospital might be compelled to let a Washington agency dictate his relations with his farm hands.

Again, even if the farmer should be specifically exempted from the proposed new law, that would be an assertion of congressional power to apply it to him. And a future congress not so friendly toward the farmer could easily amend the law. It's certainly going to be an interesting future for the farmer!

THE VALUE OF FACTORIES

A group of Ohio unionists have just proposed a law to restrict or prevent "decentralization of industry," a phrase which means the moving of factories away from present industrial centers.

The unionists fear that many of the Ohio factories in which they work will move to other states and that they have to move too or find other jobs. Even more than that, it means they realize they could have no jobs and no homes without their factories.

When the attitude of this group is put alongside that of a Texas mayor the result is interesting. The mayor recently offered free land and free gas for power to factories which would locate in his town. Thus we find workers in factories seeking to keep them where they are, and a mayor interested in the welfare of his community seeking to get some factories.

In short, both the unionists and the mayor appreciate the value and importance of factories and industry. That they are important not only to communities but to the whole nation is a truism which a few short-sighted planners seem to have forgotten.

DIMINISHING RETURNS

There is ample evidence that taxation in the United States has reached the point where the law of diminishing returns is operative. The shackles of excessive taxation need to be loosened, not tightened, but the federal government and almost all state and local units continue to search for fresh means of extracting money from helpless taxpayers.

The problem is so simple that even a run-of-the-mine politician could grasp it, if he ever could be induced to direct a little attention toward it. Business thrives and enterprise is stimulated when a reasonable part of the profits can be retained by the business man. If government exactions take an unreasonably large part of the returns of individual effort, the result is diminished and unprofitable.

KEEP THE HENS WORKING

If you are to make money on your hens, they must give you good egg production. They need a feed that supplies the nutrition required for making plenty of eggs. That's Ful-O-Pep Egg Mash. Its liberal oatmeal content and other ingredients make it a balanced feed that helps the hen make eggs. Poultry keepers find that Ful-O-Pep Egg Mash fed the Ful-O-Pep Way—with plenty of whole oats and grain—produces more eggs at less feed cost.

FUL-O-PEP EGG MASH

keeps up body weight and holds down mortality in the laying flock for it provides the nutrition—not only to make eggs—but that which hens require to keep in sound condition.

Tune in on "The Man on the Farm" broadcast over WLS, direct from our farm at Libertyville, 11:30 to 1 p. m. every Saturday. Chick Acres, WLS star, will interview visiting poultry men.
