Waukegan Motorist's Car Doesn't Make Grade

The fact that his car developed two flat tires while he was enroute home Saturday night failed to disturb Lee Larsen, Waukegan motorist, but when that self-same car failed to make the grade of the Chicago and North Western railway crossing in North Chicago it was a different matter. Larsen at first wasn't going to be perturbed but the sudden recollection that a fast train was due there in a few minutes stirred him to haste. Running down the tracks he was successful in attracting the engineer's attention in time. The car was towed home to preclude any more exciting incidents.

McHenry Sexton Drops Dead While in Cemetery

Jacob Schneider, 63 years old, caretaker of three McHenry cemeteries, was found dead in the Woodlawn cemetery while at work one morning last week. Jacob Dierich, his brother-in-law, with whom he made his home, has taken him to work in the morning and when Schneider failed to appear at noon, he became alarmed. Going to the cemetery he found the man, apparently the victim of a heart attack while working on a grave. Schneider had been sexton of the cemeteries since 1900.

Libertyville Peddler Badges Put on Sale

First orders for the new Libertyville peddler and house-to-house solicitor licenses were placed on sale last week by C. O. Carlson, village clerk of that community. In addition to receiving a license, each peddler or solicitor will receive a large badge that must be worn conspicuously. The badges are orange color with black letters and are used to notify housewives that the wearer is seeking to make a sale.

School Award Placed on Coffin of Dead Student

The athletic letter that Ralph Cowgill, 19, tried for three years to win at the Highland Park high school was placed on his coffin at funeral services conducted in the family home last Saturday. Young Cowgill, a senior, died in Highland Park hospital last Wednesday night of injuries suffered in a football scrimmage several hours before. The first game of the season was scheduled for the same day that his funeral was held and at that time he was to have realized his ambition, he was to have been in the starting line-up.

Accident Jinx Follows Girl; Hurt Second Time

The same injury that she suffered in an automobile injury seven months ago was sustained by Miss Evelyn Patton, 17 years old, of Waukegan, who was injured in an auto crash Saturday afternoon. She was with a group of friends from Libertyville when the car in which she was riding skidded on the wet pavement and hit another car on Crokie highway near Hillside Center. Miss Patton was injured about the head in the same spot that was hurt last February in a similar accident.

Earl M. Schwemm Speaks at Houston

Earl M. Schwemm of Summit street, left Monday morning for Houston, Tex., to attend the annual convention of the National Association of Life Underwriters. This is a convention for all life insurance companies all over the United States.

Mr. Schwemm is to speak before the agents' section of the convention on Thursday afternoon, and before the managers' section on Tuesday afternoon. It is a significant honor to be selected to speak before this convention.

Mr. and Mrs. Schwemm motored to Windsor, Canada last week, where Mr. Schwemm addressed the Life Underwriters Association of Windsor.

Dr. Kirk Smith Will Talk on Experiences in Sino-Jap Combat

Dr. F. Kirk Smith will speak at the Methodist Episcopal church on his personal experiences and observations as a naval surgeon assigned to duty in China during the opening part of the Sino-Japanese conflict at the evening services Sunday, Oct. 2, at 7:30.

Dr. Smith, the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Smith of Barrington, has already acquainted many of the Review readers of incidents in China through his personal letters published on several occasions. His talk October 2 will deal further with the "undeclared war" now being waged. Dr. Smith is now stationed at Great Lakes

Naval training station but he and his family are living in Waukegan. Rev. E. Baris, pastor of the M.E. church, has invited the public to hear Dr. Smith.

We'll Try, Try Again, Heights Decides After School Election Losses

Arlington Heights is going through the mental debate a small boy experiences after tossing up a nickel to determine if he shall put the coin in his bank or spend it for candy. If the candy shop loses, he convinces himself the loss was only for practice and tries again.

Last Saturday residents of the Wheeling and Elk Grove high school district 214 went to the polls and voted down a proposal for a $172,000 school improvement $46 to $19. They voted against a bond issue for the project $46 to $65, and against an additional tax issue for the project $57 to $61. The building was to have been a PWA project with federal grant of $72,000 and local financing of $95,000.

Scarcely had the vote been tabulated before the school board reported citizens were preparing petitions for another election. The petitions, signed by 642 persons, have been filed and another election has been scheduled for Saturday, Sept. 24. "Last minute propaganda brought into the district from outsiders," was given as the reason for defeat at the first election.

England imposed a tax in the Tenth century to provide money for buying off the Danish invaders.

Library News

There are several new books in the library for those interested in glassware, pottery, etc.

"Old Glass, European and American," by N. Hudson Moore, deals with the development of glass making in Europe and America. Beginning with the early Roman glassmakers, the author relates the progress of glass making as a fine art. The color, composition and workmanship of glass products as manufactured in different countries is minutely described. The markings and methods of distinguishing genuine old glass are not only carefully explained, but the book is full of illustrations gathered together by the author from museums, private collectors and other sources. The volume is particularly valuable in its relation to early American glass.

"The Old China Book," also by N. Hudson Moore, describes the choice porcelains no longer made in the old factories and potteries in England. The marks in carefully worded descriptions, with many illustrations of the variations aid the collector in choosing his specimens. The book includes Staffordshire, Wedgwood, Lustré, and other English pottery and porcelain.

"History of American Costume," McClellan, describes the costumes chosen and worn by our ancestors from the early colonial days to very recent times. They are described in such a way as to bring every-day life and the American scene of the bygone days before our very eyes. In more than 750 illustrations gathered with diligent research, the dress of the people worn during the busy hours of the workday as well as the formal wear of more festive occasions is fascinatingly portrayed.

Dyche Stadium to Be Host to Scouts

Annual Boy Scout Day will be held Saturday, Oct. 1 at Dyche Stadium where Northwestern University will be hosts to boy scouts at a football game played against the Kansas Argies.

The invitation to scouts of the Northwest Suburban Council has just been received from Dr. E. D. Kelly, scout executive of the Evanston Council of Boy Scouts of America. Admittance will be made at gate 1 on Central street and the gate will be open at 12:30 p. m. Scouts are to come as troops under adult leadership and current registration cards will serve as tickets for both scouts and scouters. Drivers of cars other than scouters will be admitted upon presentation of cards signed by the scout executive. The university requests that uniforms be worn if possible. Because of their age and risks involved, this invitation has not been extended to Cub Packs.
