

No Fatalities as Week-End Traffic Swamps Highways

One Near Drowning Sunday at Lake Zurich; Youth Is Hurt By Auto

Barrington and its vicinity escaped any fatal accidents over the Labor Day holiday that saw roads jammed to capacity with automobiles as thousands of persons took advantage of the three day holiday or vacationers were returning home for the opening of school. Traffic conditions were so good in the immediate vicinity that only two motor accidents of any consequence were reported.

Arthur Halland Jr., 15 years old, of 3240 Sheridan road, Chicago, was severely injured when he was thrown beneath a car as it overtook on route 63 south of Barrington, Sunday afternoon. He suffered a crushed chest and other internal injuries.

Little could be learned of the incident, but it was reported the young man had been riding on the running board of the car and when the driver lost control of the machine, it went into the ditch, pinning him beneath it. State highway police were notified and after investigating, found the car had been removed when they reached the scene.

A car owned and operated by John Perletta, 8621 W. 18th place, Oaklawn, was sidwiped by a car near the intersection of Rand and Dundee roads early Monday morning. The driver of the other car refused to give Perletta his name or address and left the scene before a squad from the Cook county sheriff's office arrived.

Perletta told police that he became fatigued while driving north on Rand road and had stopped the car to allow another member of his party to get in the driver's seat. Before the change could be made the other car approached from the rear and sidwiped Perletta's machine. No one was injured.

William Hrubec, 29 years old, of 1037 Cullerton avenue, was revived by inhalator squads from Lake Zurich and Woodstock after he had been seized with a cramp and sank beneath the surface while swimming at Brossy Point, Lake Zurich, Sunday afternoon. He was recovered in 10 feet of water by other members of his picnic party. He was revived by the squads and allowed to return home an hour later.

Estimated crowds of 100,000 persons came to political rallies, Labor Day gatherings and other celebrations held in the Fox River valley during the holiday. At St. Charles capacity crowds were present at political rallies on Sunday and Monday and the labor parade at Elgin Monday was viewed by a large crowd.

Snore Cycles Mark Life of the Average Person

It has been established that there are snore cycles in the life of the average person, writes Margaret McEneaney in Hygeia, the Health Magazine.

Infants snore commonly. Between the ages of ten and thirty years, snoring is rare. But after the age increases. This may be because at this age period, people become a little careless about their physical well being. And unless the physical condition which is causing the snoring is corrected, it will increase with the passing of each ten years.

Generally, snoring is due to disturbances in the breathing apparatus, especially an obstruction in the nose, that prevents the individual from sleeping with his mouth closed. The obstruction may be a result of polyp, tumor growths, enlarged turbinates, bony deformities, sinus infection or a deviated septum which encroaches on the air space of one nostril.

Strange but true, certain foods may cause a person to snore. Many men and women are sensitive to certain proteins. If they eat tomatoes, for instance, the mucous membranes of the nose have a tendency to accumulate secretions. Chronic inflammation of the nasal linings also may cause an enlargement of its tissues sufficient to obstruct the nose.

In children, snoring commonly is an indication of malocclusion. According to conservative estimates, one out of every eight persons snore more or less regularly. No doubt every person snores occasionally, but the one out of eight is the person to look out for.

WHAT'S GOING ON WASHINGTON

(Courtesy The United States News)

A revived threat of imminent European war is suddenly thrusting itself into the calculations of the American government to complicate already tangled problems.

The state department is advised by its representative board to discount heavily the prospect of an actual outbreak of fighting.

But the mere threat of trouble, centering around what Germany may have in mind for Czechoslovakia, is raising difficulties for a government now wrapped up in domestic affairs.

Once again frightened foreign capital is beginning to flood to the American shores. The dollar shows a persistent tendency to skyrocket under the demand of foreigners who find its ownership attractive. Treasury officials are forced to consider what might happen if trouble abroad should lead to a quick exodus by foreign governments of the holdings of their citizens in the United States.

Here this nation's neutrality law enters the picture.

This law as now designed—its actual war occurred—would close the door to exports of war materials and credits. Government trade experts say that tremendous repercussions could result from that situation. If the law really should be applied to important American customers. They say that export demoralized would quickly become demoralized and foreign governments would be forced to sell the holdings of their citizens to obtain gold which then could be taken out of the United States to be used by needed commodities elsewhere.

It is a matter of some consideration. If the law really should be applied to important American customers. They say that export demoralized would quickly become demoralized and foreign governments would be forced to sell the holdings of their citizens to obtain gold which then could be taken out of the United States to be used by needed commodities elsewhere.

What now is a new gold rush to the United States could become, overnight, a gold rush out of the United States through the controls that foreign governments exercise over the property of their citizens.

The newest, and most acute excitement, is reported to grow out of the present maneuvering of the German army and the feverish preparations that Germany has made of late to complete her defensive fortifications in the West and to prepare her avenues of access to Czechoslovakia. All official reports to this government are said to stress Germany's determination within a short time to remove the threat that an armed Czechoslovakia offers to her flank through the fortified Sudectic mountains.

Likewise, there is general excitement among the diplomats that Germany is determined to press with little delay for an outlet to the East that will open her to the farm lands of Hungary and oil fields of Rumania. Raw material shortages are reported to be increasing the pressures within Germany near to the point of explosion.

These calculations lead the foreign experts of this and other governments to conclude that the German government may be prepared soon to risk the chance of war to gain control of the mountains in what once was Bohemia so that penetration to the East can proceed within a hostile threat. Where the argument lies is on the question of whether or not actual war would be provoked by new German aggression. The consensus of official opinion seems to be that it would not.

An era of abundance this year has returned to American farms

Three Children Die in Auto Accidents

Three child deaths in two days from automobile accidents led school children to be careful in crossing streets.

Leonard Cos, 8-year-old Aurora school boy, was killed when he stepped in front of a car while on his way to the first day of classes this semester. He was hit by a rear fender and knocked to the pavement.

George Catherine Bobeg, 16 months old, was fatally injured Tuesday afternoon when she was struck by a milk truck in the yard at her home. The driver was starting out of the driveway at Bobeg's and failed to see the child dart across his path. The accident occurred two miles east of Union.

Raymond Kusy, 5, of Chicago was run over by a truck driven by Roy Burkman of Elgin when he walked directly in front of the machine Tuesday night. He died instantly.

Snake Lives on Eggs

The egg-eating snake of South Africa is a harmless reptile and lives almost exclusively on eggs. It is pale brown in color with three rows of darker blotches. In describing the food habits of this species, scientifically known as Dierophis scabra, Raymond Ditmars, authority on reptiles, says: "Characterized by the presence of only a few teeth in the rear part of the jaw bones the food of the species is restricted almost entirely to eggs. To aid the snake in cutting through the shell is an ingenious development in the throat. This is knife-like points extending into the esophagus that cut the egg as it passes into the throat." This snake can swallow an egg as large as a hen's even though its body is about the diameter of a person's finger. It grows to be a yard long. After the egg has been swallowed the shell is crushed and expelled from the mouth. These eggs make a big meal and after that the egg-eater is likely to fall asleep for three weeks.

Produces Rare Wine

There is a small vineyard on the slopes of Mt. Vesuvius that produces a wine so rare and delicate that it is called "Lachrimae Christi"—the "Tears of Christ."

Comedians of Animal World

The only comedians of the animal world are the Australian kookaburras, whose laughter fills the forests with merriment all day. About the size of a crow, the kookaburra has a giant-sized laugh, and is also valued in Australia because it catches mice, insects and snakes.

"How Criticism Feels"

By GEORGIA LOTT SELTER

"What little Alden in tears!" cried Grandma Graham in consternation. "Whatever can he be the trouble?" "Nothing serious, Mother," responded Mrs. Alden with a quavering smile. "Nothing worse than hurt feelings—hurt pride, perhaps you would say. Any way it does hurt! I did not want to follow Mildred in the club presidency for I am so unfamiliar with the work and Mildred is outstanding as a presiding officer, but I did my best and I think she might have come to me privately to point out my mistakes. But all I have to learn!" "Grandma Graham listened sympathetically to the particulars of the case. "Yes," she agreed, "that would hurt! And now while we are on this painful subject of advice to children, will you let me speak to you of something else, dear? Did it ever occur to you that, a great many times, little Jimmy must feel much as you do

Perceptive Can Kill Bear

Though it's unusual for a porcupine to kill larger animals, it's by no means rare. Bears have been laid low by the needle-like spines. A porcupine kills only in self-defense. When in danger, it erects its quills which are sometimes 18 inches long. The quills are not hot, but are so loosely attached they come free at the slightest touch, and barbed so that once imbedded in an enemy's flesh they can hardly be removed.

Name Meanings

If your name among the following! Melissa is a German name meaning a bee. Mildred is a Teuton name meaning mild mannered. Milda is a Latin name meaning soldier. Minnie is a Teuton name meaning remembrance. Irene is a German name meaning peace. Israel is a Hebrew name meaning God fought. James is a Hebrew name meaning a supplanter.

Three Get to Ocean Via Sewer

While doing repair work in the sewers of Flensburg, Germany, three workmen were trapped when the water rose rapidly after a cloudburst. They desperately swam through the sewers until they finally reached the ocean, where they were rescued, completely exhausted.
