TUESDAY, BARRINGTON NO. 1

SUBSIDIZING FOREIGN MARKETS

The United States government—unless there has been opposition in the forthcoming congress—was unlooked for to fight the dictatorial nations with their own weapons of government-subsidized trusts and financial credits to needy friendly nations.

That, in the view of political experts, is the only deduction that can be made from two remarkable events which occurred during the week ending December 17.

First, in a cautiously worded announcement, Secretary Morgenthau said that the treasury was studying a plan to transfer funds to help finance trade with South America. Congress on the heels of the Lina conference, in which the American delegates tried, with moderate success, to cement Pan-American relations, the meaning of this apparent move has been steadily losing ground in South America. Germany with her black-market barter system, has been steadily gaining, as has Italy to a lesser degree. With foreign trade in its present state of paralysis, price cutting and subsidies to fight a trade-war in which the "enemy" has behind it the resources of a powerful government. Therefore, it is argued, this government must help American business in a way similar to the way the Fascist and Nazi governments help their business'.

Second, it was announced an extremely complicated plan will be given the hard-pressed Chinese national government by a United States representative. The highly involved respondent Almore and Kintner wrote: "The highly involved fact of the Chinese credit all but obscures the vital fact that the United States is apparently needed supplies to the tattered armies of Chiang Kai-shek. The American government is apparently playing the Chinese patriots as an assault on the invading Japanese."

There is moral issue in all this—our government definitely dislikes its dictators, and various surveys have shown the American people to be almost solidly behind the administration in its "lacks on totalitarian states and methods. In fact, there is also a very practical, dollar-and-cent issue involved in this. There is a tremendous amount in our trying to gain lost South American business. At the beginning of the declared Sino-Japanese war, the representative of the United States Eastern Empire were extremely vocal in opposing interference with the method which ever came to pass, the traditional "open door" theory of China trade was maintained. Since then, what has happened—according to the news—Berlin-Tokyo axis, which makes Japan an ally of Germany—has gradually changed her tune in talking to us, the French and the British. In Japan, Chinese ports and commercial centers, the U. S., French and English businessmen are being continually but politely squeezed out. And a few months ago came an official Japanese announcement which, though it was framed in the language of courtesy, was in effect a demand that we cancel, made it perfectly clear that the "open door" policy was to be much modified—even to the extent that the Chinese trade of other powers would be stopped, or subjected to ruinous economic burdens, if the government of the Son of Heaven so desires.

Thus a Japanese victory in China would mean, in all probability, the loss of hundreds of millions of dollars in trade to America. It is not to be wondered, therefore, that we should increase the economic resources of an empire which will give us Chinese leaders view as a potential enemy in a Pacific war. The United States Army has been steadily losing, due in large part to lack of money to support its operations. This is a fact which the Chinese Japanese victory is a certainty unless Chiang Kai-shek is given what he needs. The treasury credit is apparently designed to help him solve that vital problem. The new American financial policy is designed to give us a share of the trade, before resorting to the weapons of physical violence. And it seems that the righteous press of events has all but forced us to adopt that course of action, if only to a limited extent, as yet.

NEW CABINET PAGES

The resignation of Attorney General Cummings did not come as a surprise. It marks the start, in the opinion of a number of Washington experts, of what is likely to be a major cabinet shake-up. So far the motives for Cummings' resignation to private life, largely for economic reasons. Others, it is said, have incurred presidential displeasure.

It has long been said that Jim Farley planned to leave the cabinet, and was only restrained because party leaders pleaded with him to keep his job long enough to handle the elections. It is possible he will now resign shortly.

Newsweek lists names Secretaries Swanson, Perkins, Boardman and Clegg as likely to be considered for leaving Washington, of their own volition or otherwise.

For or Governor Murphy of Michigan will take Mr. Cummins' place.

Farley's resignation for granted in most informed quarters that Harry F. Pkins will be tendered a cabinet post before long and that there will be a white-hot battle in the senate when his name comes up for confirmation.
