BUDDING PRESIDENTIAL TIMBER
 The appointment of Harry Hopkins to the supreme court was received with moderate approval. In conservative circles, the feeling seems to be that you can thoroughly disagree with the President's social and economic theories—but that there can be no question as to his experience and with Black on the bench, a new man with exceptional ability and capacity is needed.

The appointment of Felix Frankfurter to the commercial secretaryship and of Frank Murphy to the attorney generalship fall into a very different category. Both of these men have been the centers of violent political typhoons. Both have had legions of admirers and making appointments to both have been long identified with partisan politics. It was thus to be expected that there would be strong opposition to their being seated in the cabinet. And it was also to be expected that seasoned political observers and those appointments to a political post of potentially great importance.

These observers have come to the view that the president is endeavoring to believe that if he sought a third-term nomination in 1940 he would be elected. It is also to be expected that he would be elected. It is also to be expected that he would be elected. It is also to be expected that he would be elected.

So far so good. But there is a strong wing of the democratic party, led by the Southerners, who are openly working to prevent new deal domination of the next convention. They are endeavoring to get a conservative republican vice president, Hopkins and Murphy are anathema. They would like some such as Secretary Hull to lead them in 1940—but his advanced age is a factor. They would like Governor Lehman of New York, whom even the republicans concede to be a first-rate statesman—but the fact that he is Jewish, in their eyes, would make his selection inadvisable. Furthermore, they feel that a conservative republican vice president would be a great benefit, which holds the balance of power in any election.

As a result, seasoned political experts are saying that the chances of a third-term nomination for Roosevelt at the convention with the strongest backing is likely to be Bennett Clark of Missouri, son of the late Champ Clark, a famous speaker of the house. He is young, and an excellent orator. He has the approval of the conservative republican party. Garner, and his name record is one of independence. At the same time, he has not actively fought the new deal in most matters, so his choice would not be a slap in the face to the new deal.

The republicans are also casting around for a candidate. And here again, many think the man is likely to come from the senate, in the form of Robert Taft of Ohio, son of the late senator and chief justice. Last October Mr. Taft decisively defeated the strong, new deal backed Senator Bulkeley. His brief political record has been distinguished. He has no unfortunate past connections. And he comes from a key state, Ohio. So both eyes are on Taft. The build-up has been started. And there's a good chance you will be voting for one of them for president at the end of next year.

COMMITTEE OF SIX REPORTS
 The most important third-party contribution yet toward solving the railroad problem is found in the extensive, thoroughly-documented report of the committee of six headed by the president of the Illinois Railway Corporation, which is the general transportation situation. It deserves the widest possible publicity.

It recommends that the government adopt a definite national transportation policy providing for the fair, impartial regulation of each and every mode of transportation.

It recommends revision of the present rate-making rule, the extent to which any are now substituted and to suggest needed current conditions.

It recommends complete repeal of the so-called long-and-short haul clause of the Transportation act—an outmoded clause which has been doing so much damage to the interests of shippers as well as the railroads.

It recommends a fair and reasonable system of tolls for the use of terminals, use of main line highways, and the elimination of the illegal rate-making by the railroads and government underwriting which has proven to be an expensive white elephant.

It recommends the creation, by congress, of a new and independent transportation board, to be charged with the duty of investigating and reporting concerning the relative economy and fitness of existing modes of transportation, the extent to which any are now substituted and to suggest needed further legislation.

These are the high spots of this report. And certainly they show how comprehensive the plan is in bringing order out of the transportation chaos. The recommendations that legislation be passed to really bring about equality of regulation of all carriers—rail, highway, pipeline, air and water, of vital importance to the people. It is time to scrap our obsolete, degrading-making rule governing rate-making for the railroads be revised.
