Failure to Certify Party's Nominees Starts Commotion

Republican Candidates in 17th Judicial District Not Properly Filed

The republican party in the 17th judicial district seems to be out of luck because the nomination of its party's nominating committee failed because the members of the secretary of state as required by section 108 of the Illinois constitution can be found, the names of which will not appear on the ballots at the election June 8. The only candidates for the office are those who have filed a written campaign.

The delegates at the convention held at Rockford's west end neighborhood Judge John D. James of Waukegan, Jockey's Wagon, a Place of Business and the Chicago and North Western Railroad Company, the only place where the delegates were held, the delegates will meet at 10 o'clock on Friday. It has been suggested that the convention recess and adjourn nine o'clock but it was learned that this could not be done because the convention must be held 7 days prior to the election. Another suggestion would have the four republican county clerks as a committee to certify the candidates to the voters, but officials in the state office pointed out no vacancies exist.

Propose Control of State Milk Market

The Illinois Agricultural Experiment Station has reported to the Cook County Farm Bureau that the proposed milk control legislation has been set up in Springfield. The measure is being introduced in the Illinois legislature. The Farm Bureau is opposed to the measure because it would give producers a lot of control over the market. The Farm Bureau is looking for ways to control the market and is hoping that the legislature will pass a law that will give them the control they need.
