GOVERNMENT WAR-TIME CONTROL

GOVERNMENT WAR-TIME CONTROL

Strong is the hope of the American people that we will fer not again become involved in an European war. Not so is atrona, judging from current public expressions, it the faith sit that we will be able to remain neutral. A very considerable if agement of the population believes that we might eventually as to the add of European democracies—if the war goes on one of the control of

And so the United States is preparing for any eventual. ity—and this preparedness does not only involve the largest military expenditures in our peace-time history. Also involved is a plan for "M Day" (Mollitation Day), prepared largely by military officials, which, on the outbreak of hostilities, would have an immediate and drastic effect on every individ-ual and every business in the land.

ual and every business in the land.

Heart of the plan, of course, is a detailed procedure of conscripting manpower. The war and navy department heads remember the confusion that followed our entry into the last war, and are determined that it shall not be repeated. Every war, and are determined that it shall not be repeated. Every sould for it mes of war, account men within the age limits must be ready to enter government of he have place and the state of the section o torial power. The president, if they have they say, would be given rigid control over the radio and press. Free speech and free press, if he so desired, could be virtually abolished all in the name of national interest.

The point of view of those who plan such unprecedented againstion is clear enough. They are principally military men.
